ABOUT THE ARTIST

MATTE! is the alias of James Dinsdale, an electronic music producer from Southsea, UK. Combining minimal electronic and lo-fi house vibes, his use of layered rhythmic elements and deep bass outline his signature style, which is just as appropriate for a late night club room as it is as a relaxing soundtrack to everyday life.

ABOUT AURORA

Aurora was written and recorded at MATTE!'s home, during the coronavirus lockdown. The first single to be released from upcoming EP 'Azure', it's an enticing Lo-Fi House groove with lashings of distorted synths and chopped vocals.

AURORA IN THE PRESS

Come Here Floyd

"Congrats on this epic trip through the hinterlands (or equivalent). Has a gamer kinda vibe too. Nice. Will do well. Especially the crowns of synth dictations, jutting out at right moments. That vocal entry at the last 1/3rd was interesting. Thought we were going to go to a different more classic house blend. Nice addition to the universe."

BARRYGRUFF

"Elegant, lush and dreamy slice of hazy electronic-pop; synths shimmer and frazzled electronics cascade from above over a seductive groove and bubbling beat - it is lush and alluring for sure."

MP3 Hugger

"You can feel the swell of discovery here, pushing and prodding on those beats and letting the electronics offer the view of the cosmosphere all around. It reminded me of Boards of Canada but with a little bit of their obdurate directions quelled in return for more manageable sequences. Really bodes well for MATTE! because there is a very fine line between obscure recordings and obscurity. Reminded me most of Snivelization era Orbital."
